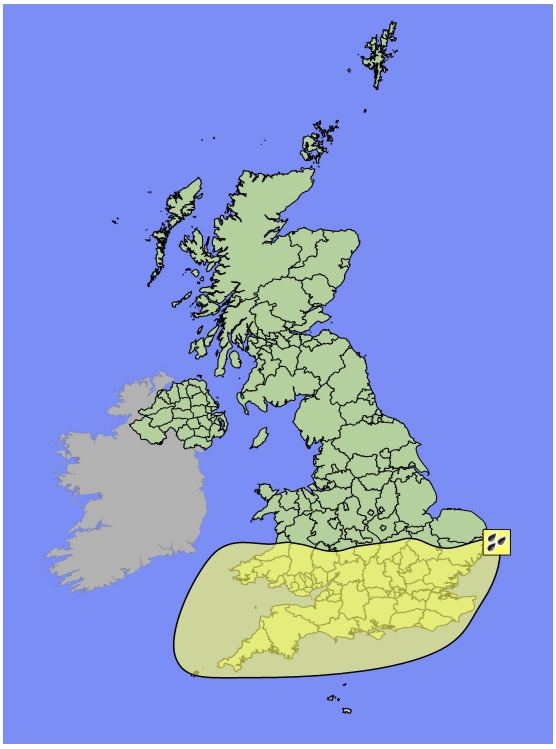
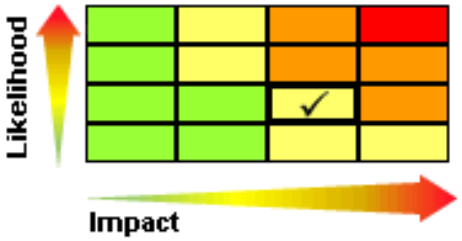
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A frontal system moving westwards from the Continent is likely to bring further heavy, and possibly thundery rain by the early hours of Tuesday. This may give totals of 10-20mm, and isolated values of 40mm. There is considerably uncertainty in the detail, and there may be marked spatial variations in rainfall amounts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:00 on Tue, 01st May 2012 until 23:59 on Tue, 01st May 2012

Outbreaks of rain, heavy and possibly thundery, are likely to affect southern England and the southern half of Wales, on Tuesday.

The public should be aware that, following recent heavy rainfall, further localised flooding is possible, as well as difficult driving conditions. In addition strong easterly winds are likely across the Midlands and parts of Wales.
